

What is the Coaching Mindset Summit?

The Summit was an event that occurred on April 13, 2018. It was hosted by the Lockheed Martin Leadership Institute, Cohort 6, with the goal to explore the transformative power of coaching and its impact on leadership with engineering and computing students, Leadership Institute alumni, business leaders, and executive coaches. The Summit was a demonstration of the Cohort 6 key learnings about coaching and gave them the opportunity to explain how having the coaching mindset is important in leadership.

COACHING MINDSET SUMMIT

LEADERSHIP INSIGHTS

Why was it important?

The Summit was the perfect opportunity for Cohort 6 to share our learnings about coaching and will explain how the coaching mindset is important in leadership. The Summit gave attendees an opportunity to learn about why the coaching mindset is an effective asset to have in an increasingly complex working environment. The attendees were given the opportunity to have round table discussions with an executive coach and observe a fishbowl demonstration giving by students of the Institute.

Key Topics

- ❑ Address by Miami University's President Crawford about transformational leadership.
- ❑ Speech by executive coach and renowned John Schuster on coaching, self-awareness as a leader, and conquering your shadows.
- ❑ Fishbowl demonstrations where Institute students engaged in a sample coaching session.
- ❑ Roundtable discussions with executive coaches on the coaching mindset.
- ❑ Presentation of Cohort 6's learnings, cumulation of knowledge and experience with practicing the coaching mindset throughout the semester.
- ❑ Closing by the Dean of College of Engineering and Computing, Dr. Marek Dollár, about the importance of the Lockheed Martin Leadership Institute.

Who was there?

The attendees were business associates of the Institute, such as Jeff Wilcox, V.P. Digital Transformation, alumni, students, and the following executive coaches: Kassie Steegman, Elise Foster, Dan Lory, Rick Hensley, Marilyn Frueh, Julie Quackenbush, and John Schuster.